

Is seeing a coworker with mental health condition face consequence related to people's expectation that discussing such an issue leads to a similar consequence?

